(b) Yes Sir, the Cranes are reportedly being hunted in Afghanistan and Pakistan during their migratory flight.

(c). and (d) Studies reveal that the population of Siberian Cranes migrating to India is endangered on account of hunting and destruction of habitat in the migratory route outside India. Siberian Cranes are included in Schedule I of the Wildlife (Protection) Act and thus receive highest degree of protection. They winter in the Keoladeo Ghana National Park in which their habitat is free from all disturbances. India is also a party to the M.O.U. for the conservation of Siberian Cranes under the International Convention for the Conservation of Migratory Species (CMS). Under this M.O.U. cooperative action is being taken to protect the species and its habitat with all the range states and relevant international conservation organisations.
